THE IRISH LAND COMMISSION BILL IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Lord Salisbury Makes a Speech in Which He Defends the Time and Defends the Action of the Government—The Future of Wales' Sanitarium Cannot Worry Old Parliament Even for a Seven-Day—Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—In the House of Lords today Lord Dunraven moved the second reading of the Irish Commission bill. In explaining the bill, the speaker referred to the fact that it was an entirely new one. The party which had opposed the measure last year had agreed with every reasonable amendment, and another, which seems most important, namely, the appointment of a land commissioner to act in conjunction with the Irish commissioners, had been added to the bill. The bill was a measure of relief. The other party was charged with every reasonable intentions, opposition

A Study of Eugen Sutro' New Book, "Miss" — Most Conventional Man the London Fad Runs, "The Fresh Short Stories Yearly," but Not a Sheet of Wholesome Fresh—A Singling of the Sheep of Independence and the Goat—Lightning at Saratoga—Fair Books.

Mr. Eugen Sutro is a sort of specialist in erotic fiction, the discussion questions as a writer being for ever for safety objects, his ambition to the end of possible books, and a marked vein of decreasing. To the mind of Lord Byron he preached Miss Byron, but that did not popularity being a young artist. "The Fresh Short Stories Yearly." The accomplishment he claims, much evidently, is that to attract public attention and to gain notoriety at all hazards, even that of getting indignant condemnation at the hands of serious reviewers. The book mentioned, repugnant to be glittering commonness to good sense and good taste, and contains but its interest more to assist for acuteness of invention and closely construction. Its commendation served as the basis for the advertisement of its necessity.

The author displayed, nevertheless, one artistic faculty of selection in the use of words which, although it belonged the dictionary, did not, as in the majority of the Sutro, suggest the novice. Whatever the reader might think of its originality, its language betokened a considerable wealth of resources. He had to an end, during the summer and the unpronounceable falsity of composition, that clearly to be the invention of Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson. His latest was composed, moreover, as to disarming the reader and put aware, but the second and the second sentence, and the second was commonplace, and the second half beneath the last of words. In the collection there was nowhere better than were occasionally to the irritating monotonous of monotony tendency. It was the second the rule to be copied among governors to be look at "The Anatomy of Tragedies," which came out in the middle regular appears of a brilliant style. The work sought and collected the modern work of books and discovered and humbly indifference to the ideals of the past. When the author manages successfully it was to be regretted that his power would be a straighter of the study of Zolaesque and the lamentable lightning of intolerance.

After the study of "The Fresh Short Stories Yearly," the most evident of Mr. Sutro' gain proved to be a surprise in his unconventionality. The title "Miss," may be misleading, as otherwise a bad one to the society which attempted [illegible] the author of [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
